NOSTALGIA is building at Cabramatta High School on the eve of its 50th anniversary.

Former students have donated about 100 year books, classroom equipment and photographs to be showcased in a miniature museum open to the public on May 23 and 24.

One thing that has not changed dramatically during the past five decades has been the school's uniform, with the green pants introduced in 1958.

Staff has prepared a video display of old slides and a power point presentation for former students and parents to enjoy as they stroll through the old schoolyard.

School spokeswoman and teacher Toni Robinson said there would be tours which would include a history of each department. "A lot of people are travelling from interstate (to attend)."
